BOMMERSBACH IRISES

HOW TO GROW IRISES—

Have good average garden soil to which is added a little bone meal. Plant rhizome one inch deep and firm down top soil. Do not allow water to stand on Irises summer or winter. Use crushed limestone early in March and September as Irises like lime. Be sure to cultivate and cultivate.

Irises do better planted in plenty of sunshine, and divide every four years. Plant them in masses as the colors show up better.

July is the best time to replant Irises.

I ship them any day from March to December, except the newer varieties which go forward during July and August.

This list of Irises are the best of the old standard varieties and are far better and healthier than lots of the new ones. Have added a few of the newer varieties that are extra good and beautiful. Prices are within reach of all.

Have growing many varieties not listed. If interested write and I may have what you need, and at attractive prices.

All orders are prepaid anywhere in the United States. No order for less than $1.00. Send check, draft, or money order.

The best way to select Irises is to see them in bloom on the plant. You are always welcome to come and see them. All plants are strong and vigorous and true to name. The figures before the varieties give the garden ratings by the American Iris Society.
